

SECTOR OVERVIEW

Emergencies: CARE In Action

Overview

CARE International is one of the world's largest humanitarian organizations fighting global poverty. In the fiscal year 2013, CARE worked in 86 countries around the world, and our emergency response and recovery projects reached over four million people in 40 countries. With more than 65 years of experience and long-term presence in many of the world's poorest and most vulnerable countries, CARE takes a comprehensive approach to emergency response: first by working with communities to prepare for and mitigate the impact of disasters; then by partnering with local groups to provide immediate assistance when an emergency hits; and finally by working with survivors to help them recover after the crisis has passed. CARE's emergency response is part of a long-term commitment, and we place great importance on building local capacity and long-term resilience to external shocks.

Our goal for the year 2020 is to continue to strengthen our humanitarian work to have a lasting impact on women, men, boys and girls affected by humanitarian crises, with a special focus on women and girls who are disproportionately affected by disasters. We know from our experience that by empowering women and girls we can reduce the vulnerability of families and entire communities and help lift them out of poverty.

CARE is committed to meeting international standards of quality and accountability when we respond to emergencies, and making sure communities have a say in planning, implementing and evaluating our response.

Before Emergencies Strike

For poor, vulnerable communities, the impact of any emergency can destroy hard-won gains in the fight against poverty. Good planning and preparedness can save lives, reduce the impact of disasters and help people recover more quickly. By incorporating disaster risk reduction

"Our goal for the year 2020 is to continue to strengthen our humanitarian work to have a lasting impact on women, men, boys and girls affected by humanitarian crises, with a special focus on women and girls who are disproportionately affected by disasters. We know from our experience that by empowering women and girls we can reduce the vulnerability of families and entire communities and help lift them out of poverty."

methods and emergency preparedness plans into our long-term development programming, CARE helps people develop sustainable methods and strengthen community resilience to prepare for and respond to disasters – anything from cyclones and floods in Asia, to food shortages or drought in Africa.

During an Emergency

Dedicated resources for emergency response allow us to provide fast, effective relief to communities in need. With ongoing programs in many of the world's most disaster-prone countries, CARE has emergency response experts already on the ground – 97 percent of them citizens of the countries where we work – and additional emergency specialists ready to immediately deploy from around the world. When disaster strikes, CARE provides emergency food, relief supplies, water and sanitation, and shelter to survivors. CARE places special emphasis on empowering women and girls, recognizing that they are disproportionately affected by disasters.

After an Emergency

After the emergency phase has passed, CARE works with communities to recover in the long term. Our goal is to transition as quickly as possible from emergency response to rehabilitation, and then to sustained development. Instead of providing long-term handouts, we help people help themselves, for example through small business assistance and agricultural rehabilitation, thereby reducing community vulnerability to future emergencies. We also provide psychosocial support, helping communities recover from trauma by re-establishing communal activities and structures and promoting better coping mechanisms through community activities.

Local Resources, Local Solutions

By buying materials locally where possible rather than flying supplies in, we support local businesses, get supplies to the people in need more quickly, and make our money go further. By partnering with local aid agencies and community groups and hiring local staff, we tap into the knowledge of a community's language and culture, develop a deeper understanding of the people we are serving, and make effective use of local expertise. CARE places importance on building the capacity of local CARE staff and partners in the countries where we work, by providing training, technical guidance and tools; with qualified staff already on the ground, we can respond immediately and quickly scale up our response.

CARE's Technical Expertise and UN Cluster System

While each response is tailored to the needs of each situation, CARE's four emergency focus areas are sexual and reproductive health; water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH); shelter; and food security, all supported by a strong logistics capacity. CARE's other technical sectors include economic recovery, education, nutrition, psychosocial support, and agriculture and natural resource management. Cross-cutting areas include gender, disaster risk reduction and accountability.

During an emergency, CARE coordinates with local governments and participates in the United Nations cluster system, a coordinated approach that aims to ensure the humanitarian actors work together, reducing duplication of efforts and ensuring all people in need receive aid. At the global level, CARE is active in several UN clusters in our emergency focus areas, and CARE has staff seconded to the WASH and logistics clusters who are deployed as cluster coordinators during emergencies. CARE often seconds a cluster coordinator for the shelter cluster.

CARE's Programming Principles

CARE follows a set of Programming Principles in our emergency, rehabilitation and long-term development work. CARE's principles are aligned with those of many other humanitarian agencies, and include:

- Promote empowerment
- Work in partnership with others
- Ensure accountability and promote responsibility
- Address discrimination
- Promote the non-violent resolution of conflicts
- Seek sustainable results

“Imagine losing your only source of income and then losing your house at the same time. That’s what too many typhoon-affected families are living with right now, which makes it incredibly difficult to recover.”

Lex Kassenberg, Country Director for CARE Philippines, after Typhoon Haiyan

Accountability

CARE's Humanitarian Accountability Framework brings together CARE's existing quality and accountability commitments, such as CARE's own programming principles and inter-agency standards such as Sphere. Central to these standards is a commitment that humanitarian agencies should be accountable for the quality of their work by ensuring that those affected by emergencies have a say in planning, implementing and evaluating our response and are fully informed of our activities. To ensure this happens and improve our performance, CARE measures our impact through a series of monitoring activities, and internal and external evaluations.

Global Advocacy and Partnerships

Recognizing the link between poverty and gender inequality, CARE's humanitarian advocacy priorities are women and food security; and women, peace and security. CARE has a particular expertise in civil-military issues, conflict and peace building. CARE works with other international and national aid organizations and UN agencies to maximize the impact of our work. CARE is an active member of several humanitarian networks which share a common goal to improve quality and accountability in humanitarian action and to alleviate poverty through policy change. Key networks in which CARE is involved or is a signatory to:

- Code of Conduct for the International Red Cross & Red Crescent Movement and NGOs in Disaster Relief
- The Sphere Project
- Humanitarian Accountability Partnership International (HAP)
- Active Learning Network for Accountability and Performance in Humanitarian Action (ALNAP)
- Emergency Capacity Building Project (ECB)
- People in Aid
- Steering Committee for Humanitarian Response (SCHR)
- Inter-Agency Standing Committee (IASC)
- Inter-Agency Working Group (IWG)
- Communications to Disaster-Affected Communities (CDAC)
- International Council for Voluntary Agencies (ICVA)

Donors

CARE's emergency work is made possible with the support of our donors, which include United Nations agencies, the European Commission, national governments, private individuals, foundations, and corporations. CARE maintains low overhead costs, with approximately 90 percent of donations going to support CARE's programming.

CARE's emergency work as percentage of programming

In the fiscal year 2013, CARE spent 20% of our budget on emergency programs and 80% on development programs.

- Development programs
- Emergency programs

In the fiscal year 2013, CARE's emergency response and recovery projects reached over four million people in 40 countries.

Main emergency and recovery interventions in 2013

- Afghanistan: floods
- Bangladesh: cold wave
- Bangladesh: cyclone Mahasen
- Benin: floods
- Cambodia: floods
- Chad: refugee influx from CAR
- DR Congo: conflict
- Egypt: Syrian refugee influx
- India: floods
- India: cyclone Phailin
- Jordan: Syrian refugee influx
- Kenya: floods
- Lebanon: Syrian refugee influx
- Lesotho: food crisis
- Madagascar: cyclone Haruna
- Mali: food crisis, IDPs*
- Mali: floods
- Pakistan: floods, monsoon rains
- Peru: cold wave
- Philippines: typhoon Bopha
- Philippines: typhoon Haiyan
- Rwanda: returnees from Tanzania
- Somalia: tropical cyclone
- South Sudan: conflict
- Sri Lanka: floods and landslides
- Sudan: Darfur IDPs*
- Syria: conflict
- Uganda: DRC refugee influx

* IDPs: internally displaced people

CARE International's Humanitarian Mandate Statement

Goal

• Responding to humanitarian emergencies is an essential part of CARE's work to fight poverty and injustice and we recognize that emergencies are a cause and effect of both. CARE helps people cope with crises through disaster risk reduction, emergency relief, preparedness and post-crisis recovery.

Objectives

• The primary objective of humanitarian response is to meet immediate needs of affected populations in the poorest communities in the world. Recognizing that people have the fundamental right to life with dignity, CARE also strives to address the underlying causes of people's vulnerability. • CARE is a major force in humanitarian response and has a responsibility as a leader in the sector to demonstrate the highest standards of effectiveness and quality.

Principles

• CARE is a signatory of and holds itself accountable to accepted international humanitarian principles, standards and codes of conduct, including the Code of Conduct for The International Red Cross and Red Crescent Movement and NGOs in Disaster Relief, and the Sphere and Humanitarian Accountability Partnership principles and standards. • CARE adheres to the principle of impartiality so that we provide assistance on the basis of need regardless of race, creed or nationality. CARE is committed to addressing the rights of vulnerable groups, particularly women and children, in times of crisis. • CARE upholds the principle of working independently of political, commercial, military, or religious objectives and promotes the protection of humanitarian space.

Approach

• CARE believes that local capacity can provide the most effective response to emergencies. However, by their very nature, emergencies often overwhelm local capacities, and in such situations CARE will respond in an appropriate, timely and effective way. • CARE will respond wherever we can add value by:

- Providing additional resources
- Enhancing the quality of response
- Committing to longer-term solutions
- Building local capacities

• We have a range of response options:

- Providing direct relief
- Working with and through partners
- Advocating with national and international bodies
- Keeping the general public informed

• CARE develops focused expertise both operationally and at the global policy level in certain specific humanitarian areas. • In keeping with our programming principles, CARE develops both local and international partnerships to strengthen local capacities and to add value through collaborative approaches. • CARE brings a longer-term view to its humanitarian work, including supporting people to be less vulnerable to disasters in the first place. Where appropriate, our programs link emergency relief, recovery, and long-term development, and include measures for disaster preparedness and risk reduction.

Photo Credits, front to back and left to right: Josh Estey/CARE, Evelyn Hockstein/CARE, Evelyn Hockstein/CARE, Bill Kotsatos/CARE, CARE, Kate Holt/CARE, Brendan Brannon/CARE, Evelyn Hockstein/CARE, Richard Wecker/CARE, Evelyn Hockstein/CARE, Melanie Brooks/CARE, Warrick Page/CARE

Last updated March 2014

Founded in 1945, CARE is one of the leading international humanitarian organizations fighting global poverty. CARE International is an independent, non-partisan, non-religious confederation comprised of 13 member organizations and one affiliate member, with the CARE International Secretariat based in Geneva, Switzerland. In the fiscal year of 2013, CARE worked in 86 countries around the world, supporting 927 poverty-fighting development and humanitarian aid projects, to reach 97 million people. For more information, please visit www.care-international.org or contact us at cisecretariat@careinternational.org.

